Community supporting Rae family after accident

Hydro worker making progress at rehab

ANGELICA BLENICH

It may be months or years before Scott Rae is back on his feet, but the lifelong Haliburton resident and Hydro One employee is determined to get there.

A hydro worker for more than 23 years, Scott was out doing routine maintenance between Orillia and Gravenhurst on May 27 when an accident occurred that sent him to St. Michael's Hospital.

"He was hit in the head with a tree limb," said Sue Rae, Scott's wife of 26 years. "The tree sprung back and hit him once it was cut, which is so unusual for it to do and [he] just would never have known."

Scott was knocked flat on his back and immediately began feeling tingling in his arms and legs.

He realized right away he could not move his limbs.

"All he could move was his left toe, and that was it," said Sue.

A nearby colleague called 9-1-1 and Scott was taken by ambulance to Orillia

Former soldier pays it forward

To see Dan Hrechka smiling you would never know the inner battle he wages every day.

Most people in the Highlands know him as Dan Mawbey, son of West Guilford's Ann Mawbey and brother of Bev Sisson. He is a former soldier and Haliburton Highlands Secondary School alumnus who now lives in Kingston.

But like some of his comrades in the army, he suffers from post traumatic stress disorder from his service with the military. Hrechka's health is improving daily thanks to the support of his family, medical staff and Wounded Warriors Canada – a non-profit organization that helps Canadian soldiers, veterans and their families. It offers services to assist with care focused on mental health, particularly PTSD through its national programs.

It's this help that inspired him to give back by riding in the Wounded Warriors fundraiser, Battlefield Bike Ride Liberation of the Netherlands.

Along with close to 90 other riders, Hrechka rode more than 500 kilometres from June 13 to 20, making the journey from Vimy Ridge in France to Nijmegen in The Netherlands.

The group was comprised of civilians, soldiers and veterans with mental and physical injuries.

The tour included stops such as Flanders Fields, Passchendaele, Ypres, a Last Post ceremony at Menin Gate, the Cana-

Harcourt's Donaldson guards war memorial

JENN WATT
Editor

Six months after Cpl. Nathan Cirillo was shot and killed on sentry duty at the National War Memorial in Ottawa, rotations of soldiers returned, and will continue to guard the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier until Nov. 10.

One of those sentries is Cpl. Jarrett Donaldson, 24, who grew up in Harcourt and went to high school in Haliburton before heading to the University of Ottawa to study political science.

While in university, Donaldson said he decided to join the reserves and last summer did ceremonial guard at Parliament Hill and Rideau Hall.

Donaldson is a member of the Governor General's Foot Guards, a reserve infantry division.

Standing guard at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier is a great honour, Donaldson said, and one that visitors are more aware of since a gunman took the life of Cirillo before rushing into the Parliament buildings where he was killed.

As he stands guard, Donaldson said he often thinks of his fellow reservist and the meaning behind the war memorial.

"Now I think of Cirillo – that he was there and how now you have a face for the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier and how honoured I am to be at the monument that's representing everyone who's fallen. You have time to think about that," he said.

The remains of an unidentified Canadian soldier who died during the First World War in France rest in the tomb.

Since Cirillo's death, more attention has been given to the monument and to the treatment of the sentries who work there.

Media outlets reported that sentries would often have to listen to rude and abusive comments, endure drunks and that the memorial itself had been vandalized.

Donaldson said he sees a great deal of curiosity and respect.

"They seem very interested. They don't mind coming up and asking any sorts of questions from what war is on the monument, or what happened, to saying their support for the Canadian Armed Forces," he said.

Training for Donaldson's rotation began June 7 and he is on sentry duty at the memorial until July 4 when the next rotation takes over.

The National Sentry program runs until Nov. 10 with soldiers guarding the tomb from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

$780,000 grant helps early repair work for Head Lake bridge

CHAD INGRAM

Staff Reporter

Repair work on the Head Lake bridge, at least part of the project, will start earlier than anticipated.

While the first phase of the $1.2 million project was scheduled to start in September, public works operations manager Sylvain Cloutier told councillors that tenders would be issued immediately for the repair of a cracked pier cap on the bridge near the high school in Haliburton, to avoid worsening of the bridge's condition.

The work is expected to cost $30,000 to $40,000 and be completed by late July. Cloutier said the job could be completed in as little as a day.

Built in 1963, the bridge has a series of problems including deteriorating concrete, rusting drain decks and railings that are not up to code.

A grant of $780,000 from the Ontario Community Infrastructure

Fund is paying for 54 per cent of the project, with the county picking up the rest of the tab.

Slow start for community medicine program

EMS director and paramedic chief Craig Jones told councillor's the municipality's paramedicine program, which launched earlier this year and entails paramedics doing home checks on vulnerable patients, said the program is off to slow start.

"We have one client," Jones said. "It's been frustrating at times."

While Jones said the program has a waiting list of six additional clients, the program requires clients be on the rosters of local physicians.

"The doctors have been reluctant," Jones said, explaining the program does create paperwork for them to fill out. Jones is optimistic there will be greater uptake moving forward.

"It's new and it's different," he said. "I think that once we get it rolling . . . we've got a slow roll going now."

County unaffected by land claim negotiations

A proposed settlement for the Algonquin land claim – a years long negotiation process between 10 Algonquin communities in the Ottawa River watershed and the federal and Ontario governments – should not impact Haliburton County. A draft settlement includes $300 million in capital funding, as well as the transfer of 117,500 acres of Crown land to Algonquin ownership.

"Originally, there was some [Crown] land in Highlands East that was going to be included," said chief administrative officer Jim Wilson, explaining this had since changed. "We won't be impacted at this time, per se."

Some of the Crown land that comprises Algonquin Park is part of the draft settlement.

Woman facing multiple charges

On Monday June 22, an officer from the Haliburton Highlands OPP was on general patrol in the area of Eagle Lake. At approximately 7:25 p.m. the officer activated his emergency lights and attempted to stop a black pickup truck on the Eagle Lake Road. The vehicle did not stop.

The officer pursued the vehicle to a residence on the Eagle Lake Road and confronted the lone female driver. The woman was showing obvious signs of impairment and the officer attempted to arrest her for impaired operation of a motor vehicle. The woman resisted arrest, but was soon placed in handcuffs.

The woman was transported to the Haliburton Highlands Detachment for the purpose of breath testing. She refused to provide any breath samples.

As a result a 54-year-old woman of West Guilford is charged with impaired driving, failing to provide a breath sample, driving while disqualified, assault with intent to resist arrest and fleeing from a peace officer.

The woman was held in custody until she sobered up and was released on a promise to appear with a court date of Aug. 5.

Wounded Warriors ride raises half million

dian war cemetery in Adegem, the Canadian War Cemetery in Bergen Op Zoom and the Groesbeek cemetery in Holland.

Close to half of the riding group were civilians, which led to many questions directed at the service men and women.

Most soldiers don't share with civilians, he said.

In the months ahead of the tour, Hrechka prepared by amassing mileage road riding and even rides twice daily on a stationary bike on a cruise while on vacation.

Unlike physical injuries that are easy to see, PTSD manifests itself within the mind.

"I don't look any different to any other Canadian, but it's all within the body where the evil is and plays on my mind. That's where the Canadian public doesn't understand when some of us can't work, or can't show up for work on certain days. We look perfectly fine on the outside, but on the inside the war, or the conflict, or the experience we had in ... our military career, it's still being played out every day within our body," he said.

Hrechka was diagnosed with PTSD back in 2010 and relied on the support of Wounded Warriors. He now volunteers, providing his time to support other soldiers with PTSD.

The Haliburton Highlands Secondary School 1984 graduate served in the army for close to 28 years.

Diagnosed with PTSD and afflicted with other conditions, he was medically released as a sergeant from the Canadian army in 2014.

Support is essential to moving forward with PTSD. Hrechka said it allowed him to keep his family and stay married.

Raising awareness about what soldiers endure when they return to civilian life is something he must do now.

"Now that I'm getting better on a daily basis, I reach out and help the other peers. It's just passing it forward and carrying it forward. The peers in my group know they can call me. If they need to have a coffee at two o'clock in the morning I'll get up."

The Wounded Warriors offers retreats for injured soldiers, who are given support, an important part of healing. It's something he participated in and found therapeutic.

Hrechka said soldiers with PTSD often feel alone.

"We feel it's just us. We look in the mirror and say, 'It's just me. I'm feeling this way because there is something wrong with me personally and nobody else can relate to it,'" he said.

He loves the Highlands and does his best to visit his mother, sister and all of his nephews and nieces.

"It's still near and dear to my heart," he said.

Due to his PTSD, he said, he must be aware of triggers such as anxiety and stress.

Making the transition to civilian life, particularly when the injury isn't physical, can be the most challenging. He calls it a "major stressor."

In this regard, Wounded Warriors is an of it we're hugging each other. We end up crying on each other's shoulders at different times and different ceremonies. It's friendships for life."

Hrechka struggles with social events, but works on it every day.

This ride gives him the confidence to deal with "being drawn upon for advice" by many people at once.

There is a feeling of work still to do and things that need to be achieved.

"I haven't done what I'm supposed to do yet. There's still something else for me to contribute to Canada and to my family, so I'm still here," he said.

The ride did not include much hardship as far as mountain passes and large elevation gains, but the strong winds and steep sections in Belgium offered a challenge.

On some of these short steep portions of the route it was common for a stronger rider to give a push, assisting the weaker riders.

"As an injured soldier we can draw up enough negativity all by ourselves. We don't need nature to be handing us more negativity," he said. "We'll come up behind them and put our hand on their back and say, 'C'mon you keep peddling. I'm going to peddle. We're going over this hill together and that carries a lot of emotional strength for those at a different level of suffering.'"

Now when he rides and is faced with an arduous climb, he doesn't let it stop him from rolling forward because he thought of the sacrifices made by soldiers like him in the Second World War.

"They never gave up, so hell, I'm not going to give up," he said.

He's already looking forward to next year's event when the Warriors are planning to ride in Italy.

This August, he plans to have his website up pertaining to his fundraising effort for next year once the Warriors release the Italy route.

Call or email him for sponsorship at 613-503-2835 or Daniel.Hrechka@gmail.com.

The Warriors are essential to service men and women like him to coping with injuries and loss.

"Honour the fallen and help the living," he said, reciting the Warriors' motto.

important organization, he said.

"They help the mentally and the physically injured soldiers. PTSD is very high on their agenda so this is their signature fundraising event that they run in house every year now," he said.

Hrechka raised $4,400 for this year's event as part of more than $500,000 (ongoing tally) raised by all the riders. He appreciated the people who sponsored him.

Hrechka was stationed in Ottawa, Kingston, Petawawa, Trenton and served two tours in the Middle East.

Although he didn't have a direct connection to the Second World War and the First World War soldiers, visiting the places where thousands of Canadians died brought it to light.

"For me to stand there and look down on the hilltops, looking into the valleys where our Canadian soldiers were fighting in all that mud and clay it hits home. To realize in all my 28 years, there's a lot of passion, a lot of drive to serve your country, but it takes it to a whole new level that's hard to grasp until you're standing there looking down into these valleys," he said.

At some of the beaches, where thousands of soldiers lost their lives storming the shores, he felt a kinship that he didn't expect.

"You can't help but shed a tear. Most of the places there was lots of tears being shed. It's real overwhelming emotional experience. And then when you couple that with most of us having severe injuries to start with, it's that much more emotional because here are your brothers that didn't get to come home and you're standing here to visit and pay respect for their ultimate sacrifice."

For some riders this tour is the foundation to health. "They want to come out of that cocoon that they built up around themselves because they are so scared. And over those several days you can see the friendships, the bonds start. They come out of their cocoon. It's marvelous to watch," he said. "There are people from the very beginning they can hardly look at you eye-to-eye and it [takes] forever for them to shake your hand and at the end and then airlifted to the Toronto hospital, said his wife.

"He was in acute care for over a week and then they moved him to the trauma unit," she said. "All he could move was his toes and faintly move his left fingers ... and nothing on the right side."

Doctors informed the couple that Scott had suffered a fractured vertebrae and then performed emergency surgery to release pressure from the spinal cord, to prevent permanent damage from happening.

Scott spent three weeks in St. Michael's Hospital and was eventually transferred to Lyndhurst Rehab Centre once he was off machines.

Since moving into the rehab facility about two weeks ago, his movement has improved, with feeling beginning on the right side.

"Because his left leg is coming along nicely they are very optimistic that he will be able to walk again, because that left leg will be able to hold him," said Sue. "He is moving the right side a little bit more."

Everyday tasks such as feeding himself are still unattainable, but Scott is hopeful he will be able to do that eventually.

"Every day there is a little bit more movement," said Sue, who has been by Scott's side since the ordeal began.

She is confident her husband will get through, one day at a time.

Scott spent his 50th birthday in the hospital on June 1 and his wedding anniversary within the same week.

The couple are grateful and appreciative of the support of the community and outpouring of love they have been feeling.

"Hydro has been amazing, just amazing and supportive," said Sue. "Scott's head boss Dave Price ... those first two weeks he was at the hospital every day. He still comes a few times a week to see Scott."

From family members to colleagues to friends, the Haliburton community has been helping Scott in many ways in his journey to a full recovery.

"That yoga breathing [he learned from Lynda Shadbolt] sure got him through that first week," said Sue. "It just calmed him."

The couple's two sons, who are in their 20s, have been making regular trips down to the city to see their dad.

Scott is expected to be in Lyndhurst for two to three more months, at which point he will begin receiving outpatient therapy, which takes place three days a week at the rehab centre.

"They are very optimistic he will walk. It might take a couple years they say ... he'll never be 100 per cent ... but as long as he gets out of that wheelchair," said Sue.

Between family and friends there has been no shortage of support, to which Sue and Scott are forever grateful.

"The community is just amazing," she said. "You know it but you don't realize it until you're in a situation like this. It's just overwhelming."

Mental health care and physiotherapy grow at HHHS

CHAD INGRAM

Staff Reporter

Strides were made in both physiotherapy and mental health care at Haliburton Highlands Health Services this past year.

There was a 19 per cent increase in clients at Haliburton Highlands Mental Health Services, with a 40 per cent increase in the number of sessions held, HHHS CEO Varouj Eskedjian said at the organization's annual general meeting at the Minden HHHS facility June 25.

HHHS is focusing on hiring more regulated mental health staff and is arranging more visits with psychiatrists for clients.

"We have significantly increased the access to psychiatrists," Eskedjian said, explaining there had been 267 psychiatrist visits during the 2014/15 year, an increase of more than 140 per cent.

More physiotherapy staff means more physiotherapy appointments can be held, with more than 3,000 taking place during the year.

Wait times for physiotherapy appointments have been reduced from some five months to a couple of weeks.

HHHS's long-term care homes – Highland Wood in Haliburton and Hyland Crest in Minden – are full, with 30 and 62 residents, respectively.

"These beds are full almost 100 per cent of the time," Eskedjian said.

The wait time for long-term care in Haliburton County is now a year, something Eskedjian said the organization must work to improve.

There were more than 14,000 total visits to the Minden hospital for the year, about 11,700 in Haliburton.

The past year saw the integration of Community Care Haliburton, SIRCH's hospice program and the services of the local VON under the new umbrella of HHHS's community support services.

That integration process was mandated by Ontario's Central East Local Health Integration Network, of which Haliburton County is part.

"Since I arrived, our preoccupation has been integration planning," said Eskedjian, who's been in the position two and half years. "I would like to extend my gratitude for the effort that went into making that a reality."

In particular, he recognized the members of the former Community Care, which existed for 35 years.

"It's something to be able to hand that over," Eskedjian said.

He said a major accomplishment for the HHHS board was the fall passage of a three-year strategic plan.

"What are our needs going to be in 10 or 15 years?" Eskedjian said. "We need to have that master plan."

The CEO hinted that maintaining two separate facilities may not be sustainable in the long run.

"We are no longer in the days of three, four, five per cent increases for hospitals," he said.

HHHS CEO Varouj Eskedjian speaks at the health care organization's annual general meeting in Minden on June 25. CHAD INGRAM Staff

While small and rural hospitals – such as HHHS – still managed to get a one per cent funding increase this year, medium and large hospitals have had their funding frozen for years.

And things aren't going to get better, Eskedjian said pointing to cuts to health-care funding for provinces the federal government is set to enact next year.

Ontario is set to take a $3 billion hit.

"That's going to be passed on to every health service provider in this province," Eskedjian said, adding he believed the trend will continue.

The community raised more than $1 million in the past year, with more than $1 million coming in from the Haliburton Highlands Health Services Foundation alone, plus tens of thousands more from the two health-care auxiliaries.

"Without those contributions coming in from the community . . . there would be huge deficit," said John West of Turner McColl Chartered Accounts as he presented his audit of the organization.

HHHS's total revenues for the year were just over $23 million – some 85 per cent of that coming directly from the province – and its expenditures were virtually the same, ending the year with a $10,000 surplus.

The largest portion of its budget, some $13.6 million, went to wages and benefits.

Eskedjian noted some of the most generous donations come from the community's seasonal residents.

"We also want to look at our seasonal residents and see if we can engage them further," he said. "We want them to recognize this is their hospital away from home."

There were some major changes to HHHS's board of directors at Thursday's meeting.

With five directors – Doug Gilpin, Beverley Upton, Bram Lebo, Carol Groves and Jacquie Richards – leaving, four new members were appointed: Scott Addison, Andria Cowan, David Gray and Dr. Jan Walker.

The board is rounded out by existing members Dale Robinson, Len Logoza, Charles Simon, Dave Bonham, Jeff Gollob, Jane Taylor-Eastwood and chairman John Kay.

The CEO, chief of staff and chief nursing officer are also members of the board.

Safe riding

LOCAL UPPER and lower tier municipalities have been passing bylaws one-by-one allowing side-by-side all-terrain vehicles on their roads.

Following provincial legislation changes allowing new types of off-road vehicles on their highways, recently Haliburton County, Algonquin Highlands and Highlands East have followed suit.

It is now legal for two-up and side-by-side ATVs on the shoulders of public roads in the county.

(The Haliburton ATV Association is hoping to convince county councillors to further reduce restrictions by allowing these vehicles on the Rail Trail as well.)

For provincial roads, the new rules take effect on July 1. Along with new machines on the roads, the province is also requiring that all riders, including passengers, wear helmets.

When the enhanced ORV bylaw was passed in Algonquin Highlands, concern was raised that the increase in traffic could lead to more accidents.

AH Reeve Carol Moffatt put it this way: "Don't ride hammered without a helmet. It's a recipe for disaster and death."

Already this year, riding without a helmet or while drinking has contributed to several deaths.

Ontario Provincial Police released statistics earlier this month that so far "this is the highest number of off-road vehicle deaths this early in the season since 2009."

Nine people within OPP jurisdiction have died this year including two youth: one just nine years old.

This time last year, police say there was only one ORV death.

The police also released some disturbing ratios alongside the nine deaths: five of them involved alcohol; three involved speed; and five of those who died were not wearing a helmet.

"This spike in fatalities serves as a harsh reminder that unsafe off-roading keeps costing riders of all ages their lives, leaving families devastated and struggling to understand why their loved ones did not stay safe while out riding," said chief superintendent Chuck Cox, Commander of the OPP Highway Safety Division, in the release.

While numbers are prematurely high this year, the correlation between lack of helmet use and death is a trend that can be seen year over year.

In 2013, of the 20 deaths on ORVs, 13 of those who died weren't wearing a helmet and nine of them had been drinking.

As our rules change, allowing machines on the roads that had previously been banned to the woods and trails, safety practices need to keep pace.

Helmets and sobriety are a must.

Haliburton in high gear

SWITCHING GEARS .... gearing up and down for summer in the Highlands. The Haliburton Village BIA is in high gear as our member stores, restaurants and businesses speed into summer mode.

We start by putting on our Canada. Get out your flags and put them on your homes, your cottages, your businesses and especially on your cars. We know who we are and we are proud to shout it out to all! July in the Village means special events almost every weekend.

Gear up for the annual Canoe FM Radiothon on July 3 and 4. Keep community radio going strong and enjoy the open mike and garden party on the front lawn.

Slide into a gentle gear July 9 and come to Head Lake for a water festival of soft (that's man and women powered) recreational activities on the lake. Then, gear it up again for the Roots Wake Series on July 11.

The Arts and Craft Festival is a three-day event on July 24, 25 and 26 and we're finishing up the month in a fun and happy gear at Midnight Madness on Aug. 31. This is a Haliburton County Echo event and the BIA is a proud partner. Planning is underway and all I can say for now is bananas pajamas party!

And, don't forget throughout the month we are in high gear with Come to Town Tuesdays. From the farmers' market and the Hop-on, Hop-off Bus to Music in the Park and Rails End Art on the Patio, this is a day you don't want to miss.

Keep up-to-date with our Halibur-ton Village BIA Facebook page! And, once more lightly, if your not-for-profit group is holding a fundraiser in or near the village, please let me know.

Switching gears to cottage mode means guests, family and for me grandchildren. Keeping them happy, safe and engaged is pretty easy with our beautiful lake.

And this year, in addition to library visits, we are planning sports days in town. Bring the whole family to Haliburton Village for picnics in the park, beach volley, tennis and basketball. Rotary Park has washrooms, new sand at the beach and docks at the water's edge. Playing tennis with grandpa has already been established as fun for all. You can also bring the skateboards.

As you may already know, our skateboard park is about to undergo improvements and the BIA is both pleased and excited to be supporter of this endeavour. To be a dynamic village is to address the needs and interests of all our stakeholders, and none is more important than our children and youth.

Finally, gear down with quiet time at the water's edge, reading under the trees and maybe even an afternoon nap. You will need this quiet time so you can gear up again and enjoy all that our Village and the Highlands have to offer. See you in the village... no, I won't be playing tennis, but I am good for a little beach volleyball and enjoying all the special events! Happy Canada Day!

You've got to know when to fold 'em

THE OTHER DAY I was attacked by a lawn chair. And, as far as I can tell, the incident was unprovoked.

The scary part is the lawn chair in question was one I thought I knew. I won't tell you we raised it from a lawn stool – because that is untrue, plus it also sounds really gross. But I will say this particular lawn chair was very familiar to me. I had fallen asleep in it several times; I thought I could trust it.

Unfortunately, that familiarity was almost my undoing. I made the near-fatal mistake of forgetting all lawn chairs are, at the core, wild, ferocious and unpredictable creatures that prey on unsuspecting humans. True, we domesticated them sometime in the early '50s, but they still have a streak of the untamed within.

Even though I knew this, I let down my guard.

Like all lawn furniture attacks, this one came suddenly and with great fury. One moment, I turned my back to it, the next we were wrestling on the ground and I was trying to escape its death grip and keep those massive jaws from closing shut on my behind. After its initial lunge, we rolled around the back deck for what seemed to be several minutes with me wrestling, clawing and punching. The chair was trying its best to incapacitate me and make me spill my drink.

Since I was alone, my cries for help went unheeded.

I know, right now there are probably a few do-gooders who think I provoked the attack. But let me just say I did not startle it or approach too quickly. My only mistakes were steve

Loon Tales

turning my back on it and entering an area where lawn chairs are abundant all alone.

The fight remains a blur to me. I just remember fragments.

For instance, at one point, I tried to play dead, but then I remembered that only works on chaise lounge chairs and ottomans. So I fought back with everything I had.

I think it worked too.

Immediately afterwards, the chair backed off. In my mind, however, it was only regrouping before coming at me for the kill.

I tried to show no fear since there were two other chairs looking on.

At that point I thought to myself, "I don't want it to end this way – not with me wearing track pants and Crocs."

Desperate, I went into autopilot and all the things I ever read about how to survive a lawn chair attack quickly came into play.

First, I stretched out my arms and made myself look bigger. Then, I began to yell things at it and threaten to replace it with a Muskoka chair or a picnic table. And while every fibre of my being wanted to turn and run, I held my ground and in fact advanced a step. Then, I picked up some of the peanuts Jenn uses to feed chipmunks and began throwing them at the rogue chair.

We were circling each other when Jenn opened the sliding door onto the back deck.

"Oh my goodness," she said. "What the heck happened?"

I stood amidst the overturned table and accompanying umbrella as well as the knocked down pots and pointed directly at the predatory lawn chair.

"Be careful," I said, as I heroically stepped behind her. "That lawn chair just attacked me."

I'm still not certain if the chair was intimidated by two adult humans or finally realized that I was not going to be a pushover. All I know is that its aggressive behaviour stopped and it once again tamed right down when Jenn approached, set it up, and sat in it.

Just to be sure, however, I picked up a handful of peanuts.

Jenn sat and began calmly reading a book. And I realized the chair was making a fool of me.

Needless to say, I won't take this sitting down.

On loving and letting go

GERALD IRISH

A Senior's Moment

One morning I awakened with a return ailment relating to flesh swelling and hurting. Following my wife's advice (which I don't always do) I went to the emergency section at the hospital.

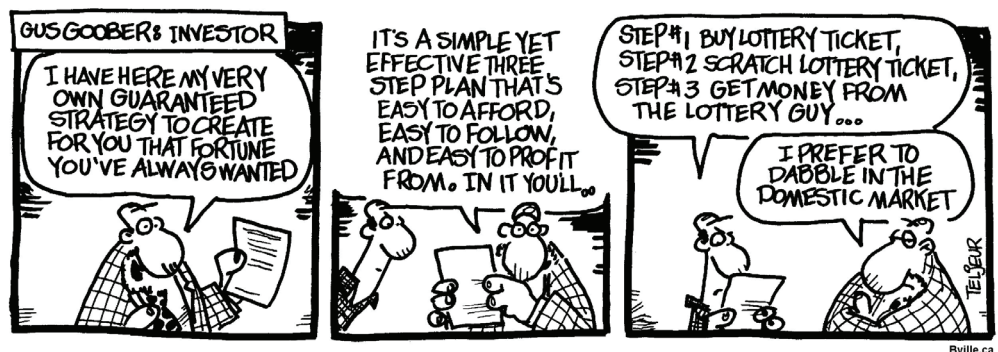

Before entering the hospital, I encountered a dear old friend who had moved in to long-term care to be with his beloved wife only to discover that his wife no longer knew him or had the ability to communicate sensibly with him. Why had he given up what remained of his life? To be with the person he still loved but was unable to share life or love with. The answer was and is YES. His life was devoted to caring for this lady and he felt he was betraying this trust by not being with her.

Now, my opinion is that this beloved husband has and still is sacrificing too much of his life to someone unable to even know he is there. I know that sounds cruel and selfish, but what is the point in continuing to punish yourself for a love that is no longer reciprocal? Visit frequently. Express your continuing love, but don't punish yourself. The lady for whom you have sacrificed so much and to whom you have shown your undying and continuous love would not want to see you hurting and punishing yourself for what has happened to her. There comes a time in all our lives when we have to say goodbye.

Love, but let go. Say goodbye, not so long. Love does not die so easily. You owe it to yourself to have whatever remains of your life.

Clement announces program funding

ELIZABETH BATE

Staff Reporter

Tony Clement, president of the Treasury Board and MP for Parry Sound-Muskoka, was at Haliburton School of the Arts on Monday to make a funding announcement for Fleming College.

Clement, along with local MP Barry Devolin and Fleming president Tony Tilly announced more than $395,000 for 30 students in two programs at the college.

Both programs will be operating out of the Peterborough campus beginning in July, however one of the programs, Skills Link, was successfully completed at the Haliburton campus in February.

Student Dwayne Hartshorn said he was unemployed and close to homelessness before being directed to the Fleming CREW Employment Centre three months ago. Now an employee of Abbey Gardens in Haliburton, the 22 year old says he is much more confident in his abilities.

"I owe everything to the counsellors and Skills Link for helping me out," he said.

The July programming will see 20 students who have completed post-secondary education participate in Career Focus, a new program aimed at matching students having difficulty finding jobs with employers in their field of study.

A further 10 students will be participating in the second round of the Skills Link program, aimed at unemployed youth and matching them with employers.

All the students will also receive practical training such as first aid and Smart Serve.

According to Debby Keating, Fleming's manager of employment programs, the majority of funds goes to help subsidize the salaries of those in the work program.

Those in Skills Link receive a minimum hourly rate which is 100 per cent subsidized by the program, while those in Career Focus receive a higher wage, about $15 to $20 per hour, subsidized at 80 per cent.

The programming is aimed at combating the youth unemployment rate in the area, which Keating says is higher than the provincial average of close to 17 per cent.

"It will help young people realize their potential," Clement said.

Although the new funding is going solely to the Peterborough area, Clement said he chose to announce the project on behalf of the Ministry of Employment and Social Development because of other activities planned for the day.

"We're doing a round table after this announcement about trades and apprenticeships, so it was appropriate," he said.

Clement also spent the morning knocking on area doors and speaking with residents.

JDHES grads reminisce while looking to future

Students from J. Douglas Hodgson's graduating Grade 8 class listen intently as Arden Harrop gives her valedictorian address June 23. ELIZABETH BATE staff

ELIZABETH BATE

Staff Reporter

Arden Harrop is going to miss J. Douglas Hodgson Elementary School, but she's excited for the challenges that await her.

The Grade 8 graduate and valedictorian spoke about the contrast between entering a new school and leaving an old one at the JDHES commencement ceremonies June 23.

Just five short years ago, Harrop and her classmates entered JDHES as Grade 4 students with trepidation, cautiously learning how to deal with getting lost in the halls, adjusting to more homework, and intimidating eighth graders, Harrop said in her speech.

Now the confident eighth graders, so sure of their footing in the halls at JDHES, will have to manage those feelings again as they enter Haliburton Highlands Secondary School next fall as ninth graders.

As the 53 students accepted their diplomas, a teacher read off answers to survey questions they had filled out. When asked where they would see themselves in 10 years, the most common answer was a version of "I see myself being 23." A humorous testament to their math skills, the answer evoked laughter from the audience of parents and served to underline Harrop's message; they will have a lot to navigate in the coming years as they move through a future they are unsure of, but excited for.

Award winners included Vaibhavi Marathem, Aidan Coles, and Maya Meraw for Academic Excellence, Natalya Gimon, Arden Harrop, and Coleman Heaven for Outstanding Distinction, Louis Muensel and Kiefer Harrison for Citizenship, Lexie Tait for the TD Environmental Leadership award, Kurtis Adams for the Principal's Leadership award, and Natalya Gimon and Coleman Heaven received the athletes of the year award.

Students said their fondest memories were of their teachers, field trips taken together, and "when the lights went out" – an incident that when mentioned in repeated surveys sparked laughter from the group. Memories like these will keep them together as they wade into a pool that includes kids from three other schools next year; hanging onto old friends, as they embrace the new.

Land Between announces awards

JENN WATT

Editor

Haliburton County's roads department keeps an eye out for the area's turtles, taking special care not to disturb nests and ensuring the turtle crossing signs are put out each spring and brought in during the winter.

Their care for the area's reptiles led The Land Between to choose them as a recipient of the Turtle Guardian 2015 award.

"For crossing signs they've gone so far and beyond the call of duty," said Leora Berman of The Land Between, a conservation organization dedicated to the ecotone where the Canadian Shield meets the St. Lawrence Lowlands.

The Land Between also awarded a Turtle Guardian certificate to Heather Inness of Eagle Lake. Inness raised money to put a turtle crossing sign on Eagle Lake Road and regularly calls in about turtle issues. For more information on the program, go to turtleguardians.com.

Leora Berman, Chief Managing Officer of The Land Between, presented a Turtle Guardian certificate to Brian Mulholland, engineering assistant for the County of Haliburton, on June 24, 2015. JENN WATT Staff

Wilberforce Elementary School says goodbye to 14 graduates

ANGELICA BLENICH

Staff Reporter

A large contingency of the student population of Wilberforce Elementary School said goodbye to their classmates and teachers at the Grade 8 graduation ceremony on June 23.

Held at the Lloyd Watson Memorial Community Centre, the ceremony celebrated the accomplishments of the past year, not just for the Grade 8 students, but the entire school.

2014/2015 marked an exceptionally emotional year for Wilberforce Elementary, as the school lost one of its own, student Taylor Donaldson, in a car accident just a few short months ago.

To remember the young boy, principal Elaine Fournier announced that from this year onwards, the Grade 8 award for leadership would be forever known as the Taylor Donaldson Leadership Award.

The news was met with resounding applause from the friends and family who filled the community centre.

During her valedictorian address, Lexi Millson encouraged her fellow classmates to follow their passion and their dreams.

Trillium Lakelands District School Board trustee Gary Brohman encouraged the graduates to work hard in high school and attend class.

The award recipients are as follows:

A steady all day rain did little to stop the young participants of Bike Fest 2 from having an unforgettable experience riding the trails on Friday, June 12 at the Buckwallow Cycling Centre in Gravenhurst.

Children were provided the opportunity to learn how to mountain bike (changing gears, reading the trail and navigating around and over obstacles such as logs and large rocks) and maintain their bicycles without any charge. Each participant received a new mountain bike, helmet and a bike lock.

This one day offering was developed by the Trillium Lakelands District School Board's healthy active living department in partnership with Canadian Tire Corporation Jumpstart, Muskoka Children's Foundation, and the Boys and Girls Club of Lindsay.

J. Douglas Hodgson Elementary School's Kylie Brohm was still smiling close to a week after her first foray into mountain biking.

"It was awesome," she said.

The Grade 5 student, who loves her new bike, helmet and bike lock, looked forward to this opportunity to ride on the trail. She loved to learn how to ride the bumps and didn't mind the rain because it was the perfect conditions for a fun and muddy day.

Another Highlands participant, Wilberforce Elementary School Grade 7 student Daniel McNeil, who hasn't had a bike for a few years, loves his new bike and enjoyed the experience. His mother Dawn Payne said her son rides a lot and appreciated the challenge of the trail.

"He said he had a good time and came home dirty," she said.

This was her son's first opportunity to ride on the trail. She appreciated the safety lessons her son learned.

They were visited by special guest and Huntsville High School graduate Dara Howell, an Olympic gold medalist in slope-style from the 2014 Winter Olympics in Sochi.

In a board press release, the TLDSB said, "Our hope is that this day instills in your child a further desire for continued participation in physical activity (specifically mountain biking) and that they may take a leadership role back at their school in the upcoming year to support healthy active living initiatives."

Local Girl Guides Pathfinder earns first Canada Cord in 10 years

Three Guides/Pathfinders/Rangers advanced and earned awards at an advancement ceremony and year end party earlier this month.

This year's girls who received awards/advanced to the next unit were: Dana Black, who moved from Guides to Pathfinders, Morgan Phillips, who won the Canada Cord, Community Service award and moved from Pathfinders to Rangers, Makenzy Jewett, who won the bronze level Chief Commissioner's award for first year Rangers.

In addition to having lots of fun, girls in all levels of Guiding work on community service, camping and outdoors, citizenship, leadership and skill building.

To earn awards such as the Canada Cord and Chief Commissioner's award, girls must complete specific activities in all of these areas. This is the first time in almost 10 years that a Pathfinder earned her Canada Cord, so it is a big achievement.

Submitted by Michelle Wolf-Miscio

The names of the girls in no particular order are Tamara Bellefeuille, Ciara Wilson, Kaitlynne Fischer, Jocelyn Chumbley, Dana Black, Emily Mathers, Ashley Zahn, Morgan Phillips, Makenzy Jewett. the leaders' names are Meghan Watson, Jennifer Robertson and Michelle Wolfe Miscio.

New beginnings a time to look back for HHSS grads

Valedictorian Jadon Bull gives his address to Haliburton Highlands Secondary School's class of 2015 on June 24.

Above, Haliburton Highlands Secondary school graduate Ben Davis takes a selfie with principal Dan Marsden as he receives his diploma. Middle, piper Andrew Mansfield leads the class of 2015.

Endless possibilities stretch out before 130 graduating students as they embark on their adult lives

ELIZABETH BATE

Staff Reporter

Commencement is an odd word. Vice-principal David Waito contemplated the use of the word commencement – to begin or start something – as the name for the ceremony recognizing the end of high school at the Haliburton Highlands Secondary School graduation ceremonies June 24.

While an old life was honoured and celebrated at the ceremonies, Waito recognized with the end of high school comes the commencement of a new life for each of the 130 graduates, one with endless possibilities stretched out before them.

This theme, the one of a new beginning that honours the past, was repeated throughout the night in speeches by director of education Larry Hope, principal Dan Marsden, and valedictorian Jadon Bull.

Marsden's speech quoted singers from REM to Wiz Khalifa to highlight the importance of looking forward, while not forgetting the past and using it as a touchstone to hang onto when times get rough.

Bull's speech was well received, bringing students, staff, and spectators to their feet with boisterous shouts and cheers. The speech encouraged students to accept their differences and shortcomings while celebrating their accomplishments with a wry self-deprecating humour.

A musician, member of the basketball team, and a student council representative, Bull will attend McMaster University for engineering in the fall.

Dressed in the crimson and white colours of the Red Hawks, each graduate took the stage to accept their diplomas from Marsden. There were cheers, smiles, and even selfies, as each student's name was called in recognition of his or her achievement. Proud parents crowded in for pictures and as gowns were collected and certificates handed out, the halls were filled with hugs and high fives.

Classes are finished and the parking lot is empty for another year, but with diplomas fresh in hand something new is just beginning for these HHSS graduates.

Haliburton Highlands Secondary School's class of 2015 reacts to Jadon Bull's valedictorian speech by leaping to their feet at the ceremony.

Nicole Black watches the ceremonies.

Summer Festival starts with laughter

DARREN LUM

Staff Reporter

Kicking off the Highlands Summer Festival this summer is Lend Me A Tenor, the award-winning farce by Ken Ludwig.

Set in the 1930s, the play is about Tito Merelli, a well-known opera singer from Italy who comes to perform in the Othello on the invitation of Henry Saunders, general manager of the Cleveland Grand Opera Company. The confusion caused by Merelli's late arrival, combined with a series of mishaps, eventually leads to the Italian singer taking enough sleeping medication to appear dead. Saunders convinces Merelli's assistant Max to sing in Merelli's place. When the star comes to, it leads to two Othellos on the stage and further shenanigans.

The play's director Scot Denton loves this play for its comedic universality and the richness of its characters.

"The comedy in it is universal. It's not peculiar to a particular class of people or race. It transcends. It has that classic trope in it where the young man loves the young woman and the older people keep getting in the way."

He adds this play that has been translated into close to 20 languages and staged around the world is a "forget your troubles kind of experience."

Denton has been with the festival for 11 years and thought this play was appropriately "bright and lovely" to start the summer offerings for the Highlands audience.

This play was possible due to the vocal skills of local singer Carl Dixon as tenor Tito, and Sheridan College theatre graduate Adrian Zeyl as Max his assistant, Denton said.

Dixon, a Canadian rock singer, keyboardist and guitarist, has more than 30 years of music experience, writing and performing.

He has performed with Coney Hatch, April Wine and The Guess Who, and has done solo work.

The rest of the cast includes Jenny Austin as Max's love interest Maggie, Sue Black as Tito's wife Maria, and Riley Tait as the bellhop. Rounding out the cast are festival veterans Brian Kipping as Henry Saunders, Marilyn Hawley as Julia and Kathryn Boyd as Diana.

The screwball comedy runs weeknights at 8 p.m. starting with its opening night on June 29 and closes with its final show on July 9 at the Northern Lights Performing Arts Pavilion in Haliburton. Curtain talk is on Friday, July 3. This is the first theatre production in the summer festival and is followed by One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest. # County borrows from Infrastructure Ontario

CHAD INGRAM

Staff Reporter

Haliburton County will borrow approximately $3.6 million from Crown corporation Infrastructure Ontario (IO) to pay for some large projects.

During a June 10 meeting of the county's finance and correspondence, councillors reviewed options for paying off two loans. The county will borrow $1.725 million to help pay for its new paramedic base and $1.9 million for major roads projects on county roads 7 and 14 to be completed this summer.

For the $1.9 million loan, the county will amortize its payments over four years, at an interest rate of 1.64 per cent.

"That's a great rate. You can't beat that rate," said Dysart et al Reeve and County Warden Murray Fearrey.

Comparatively, rates from both ScotiaBank and CIBC for the same amortization period were 2.4 per cent.

For the $1.725 million for the paramedic base, county treasurer Laura Janke recommended take a 20-year, locked-in rate from IO.

The interest rate for that 20-year term is 3.15 per cent.

CIBC came up with a rate of 2.67 per cent, for a five-year term. Banks will lend money on terms up to five years long, after which interests rates are renegotiated.

Janke said the difference between the two rates amounted to $38,000.

"I'm asking you to pay that premium so councils for next 15 years aren't faced with a rate higher than 3.15," Janke said.

Fearrey was hesitant. "I don't like being locked in for 20 years," he said, stressing this would bind future councils.

While bank loans would allow the county to make additional payments against the principal, such payments are not permitted going the IO route.

However, most councillors felt having the 3.15 per cent rate locked in for 20 years would be worth it in the long run.

"In the last number of weeks, I've gone back and forth over the line," said Minden Hills Reeve Brent Devolin.

Devolin said he'd done some research and that during the past two centuries, he found that interest rates were only as low as they are currently at a couple of points in time, around the Second World War.

He pointed to global fiscal uncertainty, including issues within the European Union.

"If something goes off the rails there, who knows what we might be in for," he said.

Devolin said he realized it forfeited some flexibility, but supported the IO option.

"I would be around in 20 years to talk to you about it," quipped Fearrey.

County amends bylaw to allow ORVs on roadways

CHAD INGRAM

Staff Reporter

Off-road vehicles, including side-by-side ATVs, will be permitted on Haliburton County roads as council amends the municipality's bylaws in the wake of regulation changes by the province.

Beginning July 1, the Ontario government will implement changes allowing more types of off-road vehicles, including two-up and side-by-side ATVs, on the shoulders of public roads.

During a June 24 county council meeting, Eric Christensen of the Haliburton ATV Association asked county councillors to amend the municipal bylaws to allow the vehicles passage along county roads.

Now that they are allowed on provincial highways, I'd ask they be allowed on back again.

— Eric Christensen

"They want to use the roads to get to the trails," Christensen said, emphasizing the impact of ATVs on the area economy.

Christensen also requested that side-by-side ATVs – which sort of resemble golf cars, with side-by-side bucket seats or a bench – be permitted on the Haliburton County Rail Trail. Previously, side-by-sides were allowed on the corridor that runs from Kinmount to Haliburton Village, but the county banned them a few years ago.

"Now that they are allowed on provincial highways, I'd ask they be allowed back on again," Christensen said.

Councillors agreed to change the bylaws to allow the vehicles on roadways. The issue of permitting side-by-sides on the Rail Trail was referred to staff and a report will come back to council.

"It's nice to see the laws catch up with the reality on the ground," said Minden Hills Reeve Brent Devolin of the provincial regulation changes.

Lower-tier townships have also been amending their bylaws to allow ORVs on their roads, with Algonquin Highlands council passing such as resolution last week.

Spin for Steve brought in donations, spinners and some interesting costumes on Saturday, June 20 to raise money for Steve Davis, who had a spinal cord stroke in April. The event was held at Skye Cycle in Haliburton. JENN WATT Staff

Friends and neighbours Spin for Steve

JENN WATT
Editor

Childhood friends of Steve Davis and other well-wishers gave their time and a bucket of sweat to raise money for him and his family on Saturday, June 20.

Taking part in Spin for Steve at Skye Cycle in Haliburton, each participant raised money for their friend who suffered a stroke in his spine in April and is recovering at a Toronto rehabilitation centre.

Skye Cycle owner Skye Austen said she went to high school with Davis and thought it would be an effective way to raise money. She had several of the participants pose for funny photos, sometimes dressed up in costumes, which she posted on Facebook and other social media sites to generate interest.

Instructors from the spin studio came out on Saturday morning to lead the group, donating their time to the cause. There was a full donation jar at the front desk – one donation was from a contractor promising his services to the family.

"There was lots of love in the room today for Steve and [his wife] Marianne," said Austen. She said she appreciated the time of her staff and those who donated money and other goods and services to the family. Special thanks went to Amanda Robinson for photography and editing and Renee Giguere for design work.

Nearly $6,000 was raised during the spin fundraiser on top of the more than $6,800 raised so far on the Steve Davis Go Fund Me website.

Outpost displays aprons through the ages

ELIZABETH BATE

Staff Reporter

It started with just a few house dresses. When the five dresses from the 1940s and 50s were found hanging in the closet in Agnew's General Store in Wilberforce a few years ago they were donated to the Wilberforce Red Cross Outpost Historic House Museum. When committee members Barbara Schofield and Hilda Clark began to talk about their first summer exhibit, the dresses played an important role.

"These dresses were just hanging in the closets, and I said 'Oh my goodness, why don't we put some of the aprons on the dresses?'" said Clark.

The aprons to be featured were supposed to be ones that nurses stationed in the house would have worn or seen throughout the town, but when a call for aprons from the community garnered many more donations, the exhibit grew.

"It was hard to know which period some of the ones were from," Clark said. "There's some interesting stuff about them."

Some of the aprons on display come from a time when it was common to take old handkerchiefs and re sew them together into aprons. Others on display are from the hardware store from a time when phone numbers displayed on the pockets were only three digits. There are replica nurses' aprons, store bought aprons, and even aprons that Clark made when she was a child.

Aprons protect clothing while working, but now if something spills it's easy to change into something clean. Clark said when aprons were worn in the past they were much more necessary, as women may only have a few dresses.

"Aprons were pretty important," Clark said. "Originally women didn't have much clothing and they [dresses] were hard to wash."

Visitors to the museum can see apron styles change over the years, from the sewn handkerchiefs, to ones with hand-made cut-work lace, to rick-rack tape over sheer cloth.

"These ones wouldn't have been worn every day," Clark said of the fancier ones. "They would be for bridge club, or for tea, or if the minister's coming over."

The display includes a timeline of apron styles through the covers of sewing patterns lined up on the kitchen wall and labelled by year.

Many of the aprons are family heirlooms, precious to those who donated them for the display.

"I had all these aprons that I knew I just couldn't throw out yet," Clark said.

The display will run every day at the museum until Civic Holiday weekend from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., except Tuesdays when the museum is closed. The regular exhibition of historical nursing and Red Cross artifacts will remain on display.

Fleming students building sustainable house at Haliburton Forest

ELIZABETH BATE

Staff Reporter

They're building a nest in Haliburton Forest.

A sustainable two-family dwelling to be exact. Far from any ordinary house, the new units meant for housing forest workers, are being designed and built as the practical project for Fleming College's Sustainable Building program.

Instructors Ali Lam and David Belsey say the five month program teaches students construction fundamentals, while also teaching them to source materials and build in a sustainable way.

Designed in a unique way, the house will be built with different types of construction in order to give the students a chance to experience each type in a live working environment. One feature in particular, a rammed earth wall, is causing excitement for both students and instructors.

Built with different levels of earth sourced from the forest and mixed with a reduced amount of concrete, the walls dry looking like layers of different coloured sand in a jar. The reduced cement not only means reduced toxins in the home, but reduced gases released into the atmosphere.

David Belsey, an instructor in the sustainable building program at Fleming College, Haliburton School of the Arts, holds soil taken from Haliburton Forest and the surrounding area that is being used to build a rammed earth wall in the program's practical build project. ELIZABETH BATE staff

Megan Taylor, left, and Roger Cada work on constructing a sustainable two-family dwelling.

"For every pound of Portland cement that is created, a pound of CO2 goes into the atmosphere," Belsey said.

The rammed earth walls also house the recycled insulation in the middle of the wall, instead of on the outside. Belsey says this will keep the house warmer in the winter and cooler in the summer. Outside elements won't be able to permeate the exterior of the house as easily as in traditional models, driving down the need for furnace or air conditioner use.

"It's kind of like a self-regulating building," Belsey said.

Another wall will be constructed of straw bales 18 inches thick. Although jokes are made about huffing and puffing, Belsey says nothing will blow these walls over. Both the rammed earth and straw bale walls tested 35 to 40 per cent stronger than traditional walls, and much stronger than building codes require.

"It's much more complicated building than any other building you're going to see. Just in this level of the building we have four different wall systems," he said speaking about the walk-out basement level that students were working on in the first week of June.

While the students will be finished the program in August, Belsey expects the house to take up to two extra months to see completion. Some students may stay on the project, but the Forest is likely to bring in other contractors to help finish the job.

Belsey says although sustainable building methods are not as widely accepted by urban municipalities, the construction methods learned on the project can be put to good use in both rural and urban settings and are gaining traction with major construction companies.

"It is difficult in that regard to get it accepted, but it's a process of educating the individuals you're dealing with," he said.

Former students have gone on to work for large contracting companies such as Ellis-Don that are looking to incorporate more green and sustainable building methods into their projects. Lam was also a graduate of the project in 2006 and became a co-instructor in 2012.

"What we're doing is what future construction will be," said Lam. "This is going to be the industry standard."

Students in the program range from those new to the industry and those looking to learn how to construct their own homes, to those who have already been working in the industry and want to pick up a different skill-set.

Roger Cada owns a timber business in the Wine River area between Sault Ste. Marie and Sudbury. He started the program because he wanted to learn about building with straw bales. He says he loves the way the program is taught - out in the field.

"I hate school, but I love the project to death," he said.

"That's what I love about it is on the job training."

Cada will begin to use straw bale construction within the year.

"I figure it's the way to go in the future."

Lam says the myth that natural houses cost more comes from a fear of the unknown. Green and sustainable housing projects she has worked on range anywhere from $120 per square foot to $320 per square foot for building materials. That means on the low end a small two-bedroom home may cost under $200,000 for building materials and labour, a comparable price to homes built with traditional materials and methods.

When families are considering the cost of a new build, Lam says it's also prudent to look at the human cost to produce and live with less sustainable materials over the long term.

"We're looking at when you're actually occupying the building, the health of that," she said.

Belsey says conventional materials such as ICF foundations will continually off-gas, emitting CO2 and other chemicals into the atmosphere slowly for the life of the building.

"You're breathing that gas in," he said. "You won't notice it, you won't feel it until something happens down the line and you develop cancer or whatever the case may be, and you might not even attribute it to the foundation."

Working with conventional materials not only has a long-term cost to families, but to workers too, who are repeatedly exposed to the chemicals and other toxins involved.

"The idea is to create a better environment for people to live in and for workers to actually assemble a building in," Belsey said.

In addition to promoting a more sustainable living and working environment, the program promotes a more equitable working environment as well. Lam says she sees more women in the program and that everyone can access the program equally.

Student Megan Taylor is in the program to learn better methods for building her own home, but has worked in the construction industry in the past and says the working environment is better than what she has seen on other job sites.

"I used to work in construction and I got warned, you know, that guys can be rough on site. I find that's not at all the case here," said Taylor.

Students get to take a turn at doing everything on site. Cada says despite the fact that it is a learning environment everyone on site takes their jobs seriously.

"You have to really want to do it. There's a lot of intensive work in here," Cada said. "There is no slacking, you've got to be dedicated."

Join the Haliburton Lions Club's pride

DARREN LUM

Staff Reporter

The Haliburton and District Lions Club is about getting to be part of something bigger all while helping the community and having fun said one of its newest members, Gail Stelter.

Stelter, the club's volunteer organizer who joined close to a year ago, can't say enough great things about her first year as a member and wants others to share the same feeling.

It starts with the club's "people of good will who simply want to help others," she said.

The retired principal and grandmother, leads a busy life and wanted a service organization that enabled her to contribute to causes close to her heart and was flexible when it came to scheduling.

"It's a good match for my lifestyle. It means if I'm away in the winter for three months the Lions don't mind. I don't have to make up the meetings I missed ... not that I want to miss meetings, but I want that flexibility," she said.

Stelter has been a full-time Drag Lake resident since 2008. She started as a cottager in 1995.

This club has also been perfect for satisfying her diverse interests from helping children to the poor.

"If you join the Lions you can guarantee that you'll have fun and good times.

The most important pitch is you are going to serve more people more often," she said. "We can help more people more often in our community being in this service organization."

She acknowledges that people can join various other clubs that benefit the environment or children, but the Lions is involved with a program to virtually suit anyone's interest, whether that is children's programs, environmental programs or community building.

"Welcome environmentalists. Welcome educators. Welcome people who are passionate about kids. If you love animals we have projects with animals with our guide dogs," she said.

Club president Ray Howlett joined the Lions 26 years ago mainly on the recommendation of his father, who was a member, and to meet people when he first moved to Dunsford.

"The more I got into it the more I felt this was where I needed to be to help people," he said. "As an individual you're bombarded by mail and telephone calls to help, but as an individual you're kind of limited as we all are in our ability to give money, but it's like anything else if you're in an organized group of 20 to 30 to 40 people you can now do some great things."

Howlett is about to begin his second consecutive term in Haliburton after serving a year at the helm of the club.

He is very proud of the demonstrated strength of the organization when it managed to raise $400 million through two efforts for the Campaign Sight First to eradicate preventable blindness in the world.

This included the training of ophthalmologists, providing surgeries and used eye glasses.

Howlett said with more than 200 clubs based around the world they are among the first service organizations to help people following disasters.

He adds the organization donates more than 85 per cent of what it raises to local causes.

Although Stelter appreciates the club's international charitable presence, it's the local efforts that she truly appreciates.

"For me, I'm passionate about Haliburton County. I'm passionate about this being a poor community [that I can help] and the number of people who bring their needs to the Lions or to the Rotary club or to other service organizations. I don't want to eliminate all the good work that everyone else does, but in my mind this is where I can do a huge variety of work and use my talents and my skills," she said.

Locally, the club has contributed to Food for Kids Haliburton County, SIRCH, Artists in Schools and Haliburton Highlands Health Services, has performed hearing and vision screening tests as well as given two books to every child from junior kindergarten to Grade 3 recently at Cardiff Elementary School because of a partnership with Scholastic Canada publishing.

Stelter encourages people to reach out to a Lions member to attend a meeting (none during the summer) or a social event. Stelter, who remembers coming to several events before joining, still beams about the welcome she received when she first attended.

The annual membership due is $75 or $130 for couple/family.

The dues contribute to local and global initiatives.

School's out and summer's in

community news

wilberforce

Hilda Clark
448-2018

Summer is here. School is out. Students are free from formal learning. Older ones may be learning about work as they experience summer jobs. Younger ones are free to play, to help with chores, to hopefully explore the great outdoors right at their doorsteps.

Anticipation of summer vacation was definitely in the air at the end of year celebrations for the Wilberforce Elementary School students last week. The Lloyd Watson Memorial Centre had been thoughtfully and beautifully decorated for the occasion. The students and staff were prepared and so well dressed. Guests, families and friends present for this special occasion.

For this year's Grade 8s, the graduating class it was extra special. They are Brooke Billings, Halle Dale, Jordan DeWitt, Shaylynn Haughton, Brittany Hewer, Evan Lunge, Haylee McNeil, Nikki Middag, Becca Pacey, Ian Plumb, Kadie Raimey, Lexi Millson, Melanie Toth and Chaz Whitehead.

With Mr. Ferri as MC presentations of special awards were made by staff.

Awards for most improved were: Isaiah Donaldson (Gr 4), Emma Deterling and Gracyn Whitefield (5), Hunter Arnott (6), Travis DeSousa (7) Ian Plumb (8).

Receiving awards for showing perseverance were: Michael Rogers (5), Justice Donaldson (6), Jacob Wood (7), Evan Lunge (8).

Athletic awards went to: Ricky Ervin and Al Ervin (4), Tyler Florent (5), Desi Davies and Hunter Arnott (6), Jordan Meharrie (7), Nikki Middag (8).

French awards were received by Parker Lovell (4), Gracyn Whitehead (5), Hailey Carey (6), Erik Morrison (7), Lexi Millson (8).

Academic awards went to Destiny Storey and Parker Lovell (4), Nikita Watson (5), Desi Davies and Hailey Alden (6), Abi Kauffeldt (7).

Citizenship awards were received by Destiny Storey (4), Abigale Ervin (5), Chelsea Flynn (6), Daniel McNeil (7).

Awards for Leadership went to Ashala Fitzgibbon and Cheyenne Fitzgibbon (5), Eric Morrison (7).

Reeve Burton awarded bursaries to four deserving students graduating this year. They were Brooke Billings who received the Grade 8 Academic award, Haylee McNeil and Halle Dale who won the Grade 8 Citizenship Award. Chaz Whitefield who received the leadership award and the Taylor Donaldson Leadership Award which was initiated this year by the Wilberforce Elementary School.

An excellent thoughtful valedictorian address was given by Lexi Millson. Later the graduates enjoyed a special meal together at the Algonquin Diner.

May all the students and staff have a good summer break.

The Apron Exhibit had a successful opening at our Historic House Outpost Museum on June 22. It will be on display throughout July. Museum opens daily except Tuesday 11 to 4 beginning Canada Day. Aprons brought up some great memories.

Tom Taylor, author of Canadian history novels including Brock's Agent, Brock's Railroad and Brock's Assassin, spoke at the Haliburton Highlands Writers' and Editors' Network breakfast meeting at the Red Umbrella resort on Saturday, June 27. Tom's enthusiasm for writing and his keen understanding of marketing books made for a worthwhile and entertaining morning. Also a Haliburton area coterie perhaps Tom may discover plots for a future tale or two based here. His books are available in the book store in Minden.

Happy Canada Day. See you at the Outpost museum at 11:30 a.m.

Notice of Public Community Meeting For a Project Proposal Under the Large Renewable Procurement

The proponent identified below is proposing to submit a proposal to the Independent Electricity System Operator (IESO) to design, build, and operate a Large Renewable Project for the generation of electricity under the IESO's Large Renewable Procurement (LRP).

The LRP is a competitive process for procuring large renewable energy projects generally larger than 500 kilowatts. At the conclusion of the LRP, the IESO may award contracts for successful projects up to the specified procurement targets for each renewable fuel: 300 megawatts (MW) for wind, 140 MW for solar, 75 MW for waterpower, and 50 MW for bioenergy.
